FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1899.

CONTENTS:
The Columbus Meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science............................................ 161
The International Catalogue of Scientific Literature:—
The Danger of Indiscriminate Acclimatization in the Case of Mammals and Birds: Dr. T. S. Palmer........................................... 174
The Mental Effects of the Weather: Dr. Edwin G. Dexter................................. 176
Scientific Books:—
Scientific Journals and Articles.................................................... 185
Societies and Academies:—
The Botanical Society of America: Professor Geo. F. Atkinson ................................................................. 185
Discussion and Correspondence:
Anaglyphs and Stereoscopic Projection: Dr. E. W. Scripture. Pot-hole vs. Remalino: Dr. Oliver C. Farrington................................................... 185
Notes on Inorganic Chemistry: J. L. H........................................ 187
Botanical Notes:—
Spruce and Pine of West Virginia; Studies of the Species of Euphorbia; Botany in Iowa........ 188
The School of Geography at Oxford University: R. E. D.................................................. 190
Scientific Notes and News....................................................... 190
University and Educational News............................................. 192

MSS, intended for publication and books, etc., intended for review should be sent to the responsible editor, Professor J. McKean Cattell, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

THE COLUMBUS MEETING OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

As Science has already announced, the 48th Annual Meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science will be held from the 21st to the 26th of the present month, under the presidency of Professor Edward Orton, at Columbus, Ohio, in the buildings of the Ohio State University. By certain members of the Council at the Boston meeting last year it was thought that the acceptance of the invitation from Columbus, involving the rejection or postponement of the acceptance of an urgent invitation from Philadelphia, was hardly wise in view of the fact that they hoped that with the Boston Anniversary Meeting a period of renewed prosperity would begin with a series of large and enthusiastic meetings. Nevertheless, the vote in favor of Columbus showed that a large majority of the members of the Council were impressed by the arguments presented by Professor B. F. Thomas, who laid the claims of Columbus before the meeting, and by those of ex-President Mendenhall, who also spoke in favor of Columbus. The fact that a meeting has never been held before in that city was brought out, and the function of the Science 10 (241), 161-192.