CONTENTS:

Address by the President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science: Sir Michael Foster.......................... 465

The International Catalogue of Scientific Literature......................................................... 482

The American Association for the Advancement of Science:

Section E.—Geology and Geography: Professor Arthur Hollick................................. 487

Scientific Books:

Scientific Journals and Articles................................................................. 497

Discussion and Correspondence:

Naturalism and Philosophy: Professor W. K. Brooks. Medical Sciences in the University: Professor W. H. Howell................................. 497

Notes on Inorganic Chemistry: J. L. H.................................................... 499

The New College Presidents................................................................. 500

The Protection of Birds............................................................................... 501

The Companions of Polaris.............................................................................. 501

Scientific Notes and News.............................................................................. 502

University and Educational News...................................................................... 504

MSS. intended for publication and books, etc., intended for review should be sent to the responsible editor, Professor J. McKeen Cattell, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.*

He who until a few minutes ago was your president said somewhere at the meeting at Bristol, and said with truth, that among the qualifications needed for the high honor of Presidency of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, that of being old was becoming more and more dominant. He who is now attempting to speak to you feels that he is rapidly earning that distinction. But the Association itself is older than its President; it has seen pass away the men who, wise in their generation, met at York on September 27, 1831, to found it; it has seen other great men who in bygone years served it as presidents, or otherwise helped it on, sink one after another into the grave. Each year, indeed, when it plants its flag as a signal of its yearly meeting, that flag floats half-mast high in token of the great losses which the passing year has brought. This year is no exception; the losses, indeed, are perhaps unwontedly heavy. I will not attempt to call over the sad roll-call; but I must say a word about one who was above most others a faithful and zealous friend of the Association. Sir Douglas Galton joined the Association in 1860. From 1871 to 1895, as one of the General Secretaries, he bore, and bore to the great good of the Associa-

* Dover Meeting, 1899.