Editorial
Risk and Benefit

Articles
Some Neglected Possibilities of Communication: F. A. Geldard
For some kinds of messages the skin offers a valuable supplement to ears and eyes.

The Mössbauer Radiation: W. E. Kock
Low-energy gamma rays provide the most precisely defined electromagnetic frequency yet discovered.

Donald J. Hughes, Nuclear Physicist: H. Palevsky

Science in the News
Federal Support for Oceanography: Geneva Talks Continue under Handicaps; Atoms for Peace Awards: Berkeley Symposium on Mathematical Statistics; President's Committee Reports on Food Additives

Book Reviews
Evolution after Darwin, reviewed by W. W. Howells; other reviews

Reports
Density of the Lunar Atmosphere: J. C. Brandt
Learning and Cortically Evoked Movement during Propagated Hippocampal Afterdischarges: J. P. Flynn and M. Wasman
Scintillation Counting of Beta Activity on Filter Paper: B. L. Funt and A. Hetherington
Late Glacial and Postglacial Hudson Bay Sea Episode: H. A. Lee
Colloidal Silica as a Standard for Measuring Absolute Fluorescence Yield: D. M. Hercules and H. Frankel
On the Presumed Sterile Induction of Plant Tumors: R. M. Klein and A. C. Braun
Negative Afterimage without Prior Positive Image: G. Sperling
A Simple Inexpensive Potometer: N. Grobelaar
Effect of DDT on Free Amino Acids of Susceptible and DDT-Resistant Aedes aegypti Larvae: D. W. Micks, M. J. Ferguson, K. R. P. Singh

Association Affairs
Preliminary Announcement of the New York Meeting and Call for Papers by AAAS Sections

Departments
Forthcoming Events; New Products

Letters from K. Gingold; B. Shishkin; A. S. Zygmuntowicz, M. L. Burrans, C. G. Colburn

Cover
Photograph of oceanic squid at a depth of 700 meters. This picture was taken automatically as the squid pulled on a baited hook (lower center) attached to a deep-sea camera. Such photographs have given information about the distribution of squid with depth. This squid is about 3 feet long. [A. S. Laughton, National Institute of Oceanography, Wormley, Surrey, England]