Editorial
New Institute for Biological Studies at San Diego ..................................................... 747

Articles
New Evidence on Fossil Man in China: K. Chang ....................................................... 749
The paleontological history of man in China is beginning to be documented by fossil evidence.

Historical Structure of Scientific Discovery: T. S. Kuhn ........................................... 760
To the historian discovery is seldom a unit event attributable to some particular man, time, and place.

News and Comment
Foreign aid discovers . . . Political education of the Geological Survey .......................... 765

Book Reviews
G. Reichel-Dolmatoff and A. Reichel-Dolmatoff's The People of Aritama, reviewed by J. P. Gillin; other reviews .............................................................. 770

Reports
Chemical Mating Attractants in the Queen Honey Bee: N. E. Gary ............................. 773

Effect of Monochromatic Rearing on the Control of Responding by Wavelength: N. Peterson ................................................................. 774

Parotoid Secretions of Indonesian Toads: F. G. Henderson, J. S. Welles, K. K. Chen . . 775

Detection of Aspergillus flavus in soil by Immunofluorescent Staining: E. L. Schmidt and R. O. Bankole ............................................................. 776

Effect of Isotropic Confining Pressure on Hydrostatic Pressure of Water in Unsaturated Soil: P. R. Day and W. M. Forsythe ............................. 779

Very Small Diatoms: Preliminary Notes and Description of Chaetoceros galvestonensis: A. Collier and A. Murphy ........................................... 780

Absence of Carbon-14 Activity in Dolomite from Florida Bay: K. S. Defleyes and E. L. Martin ................................................................. 782

Carbon Dioxide Fixation in Lobster Nerve: S. Cheng and H. Waelsch ............................ 782

Departments
Meetings: Forthcoming Events ............................................................................... 784

Cover
Zinc chromate crystals (about ×700). [L. C. Massopust, Art and Photography Department, Marquette University]