Editorial
Civilian Nuclear Power  .......................................................... 1231

Articles
The Rise of a Research Empire: NIH, 1930 to 1950: D. C. Swain ................. 1233
The spectacular growth of NIH came after two decades of careful planning by the Public Health Service.

Light and the Asexual Reproduction of Pilobolus: R. M. Page ..................... 1238
Responses to light play an important role in the development and reproduction of this fungus.

News and Comment

Book Reviews
The Nature of Science: C. C. Gillispie ............................................. 1251
Normal science is succeeded by a creative phase of revolution out of which new concepts emerge.

The Value of Water in Alternative Uses, reviewed by R. K. Linsley; other reviews ..................................................... 1253

Reports
Sound Stimulation and Its Effect on Dental Sensation Threshold: S. Carlin et al. .............................................................. 1258

Poisoning by Organic Phosphorus Pesticides Potentiated by Phenothiazine Derivatives: T. B. Gaines .............................................................. 1260

Potassium-Argon Dating of Plutonic Bodies in Palmer Peninsula and Southern Chile: M. Halpern .............................................................. 1261

Surface Textures of Sand Grains—an Application of Electron Microscopy: Glaciation: D. Krinsley and T. Takahashi .................................................... 1262

Geotropic Stimulation: Effects on Wound Vessel Differentiation: L. W. Roberts and D. E. Fosket .............................................................. 1264

The Fungus Beuveria tenella: T. C. Cordon and J. H. Schwartz ..................... 1265

Diamonds in the Dyalpur Meteorite: M. E. Lipshutz ..................................... 1266

Hypersexual Activity Induced in Females of the Cockroach Nauphoeta cinerea: L. M. Roth .............................................................. 1267

Aversive Training: Long-Term Effects: H. S. Hoffman, M. Fleshler, P. K. Jensen .............................................................. 1269

Homology Test between the Nucleic Acid of an RNA Virus and the DNA in the Host Cell: R. H. Doi and S. Spiegelman .................................................... 1270

Photographic Cytophotometry with a Dual Microscope: J. W. Kelly ................. 1272

Correspondence between Stevens’ Terminal Brightness Function and the Discriminability Law: E. E. Green .............................................................. 1274

Departments
Meetings: Handling, Reducing, and Interpreting Geophysical Data; Forthcoming Events .............................................................. 1276

New Products .................................................................................. 1284

Cover
Surface of sand from the beach at the junction of Old Montauk Highway and Washington Road on the south shore of Long Island. See page 1262.