CONTENTS:
The Johns Hopkins University:—
Commemorative Address: DR. DANIEL C. GILMAN .......................... 321
Inaugural Address: PRESIDENT IRA REMSEN .................................. 330
Presentation of Candidates for Honorary Degrees ............................ 339
Scientific Books:—
Two New Works on Mosquitoes: DR. L. O. HOWARD; Royce's the World and the Individual; PROFESSOR E. M. WENLEY ........... 345
Scientific Journals and Articles .................................................. 348
Societies and Academies:—
The Chicago Section of the American Mathematical Society: DR. THOMAS F. HOLGATE, The Torrey Botanical Club; PROFESSOR E. S. BURGESS, Geological Society of Washington; ALFRED H. BROOKS ........................................ 349
Recent Progress in Glaciology: ROLLIN D. SALISBURY ......................... 353
Recent Zoopaleontology:—
A Fossil Camel from Southern Russia; Fossil Remains of Lake Callabona; Transference of Secondary Sexual Characters from Males to Females; Homo Neanderthalensis a Distinct Species; Distinctions between the Skulls of Lemurs and Monkeys; Distinct Phyla of Rhinoceroses: H. F. O. .................................................. 355
The Botanical Section of the Concilium Bibliographicum in Zürich: DR. HERBERT HAVILAND FIELD ................................................. 357
Scientific Notes and News .................................................. 358
University and Educational News .............................................. 360

MS. intended for publication and books, etc., intended for review should be sent to the responsible editor, Professor J. McKeen Cattell, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

THE JOHN'S HOPKINS UNIVERSITY COMMEMORATIVE ADDRESS.*

This is not the time, although it is a birthday, to review the infancy of this University. Reminiscences of the cradle and the nursery are profoundly interesting to a very small number of the near and dear, but according to a formula, which may be stated with mathematical precision, the interest varies inversely as the square of the distance.

It is meet and right and our bounden duty to commemorate the munificence of the founder, who in his grove at Clifton, and at his residence in town, spent the close of his life in perfecting a plan by which his fortune might be made to benefit humanity. Two noble purposes, the education of youth and the relief of suffering,—the Johns Hopkins University and the Johns Hopkins Hospital, became the objects of his thought and bounty. It would be pleasant to dwell upon the personalities of his early advisers,—three of whom may now witness our fervent congratulations. We might journey with them to Cambridge, New Haven, Ithaca, Ann Arbor, and Charlottesville, as they engaged in enquiries respecting the nature and offices of those leading universities, an example of

* By Daniel C. Gilman, President of the Johns Hopkins University from 1875 to 1901, on the occasion of the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the university.