The American Association for the Advancement of Science was founded in 1848 and incorporated in 1874. Its objects are to further the work of scientists, to facilitate cooperation among them, to promote the development of science, in the promotion of human Welfare, and to increase public understanding of science.

COVER

Stalked glands, with droplets of sticky secretion at their tips, on the surface of a leaf of the Southern sundew plant, Drosera capillaris. Small insects become entrapped in the viscid fluid and are eventually digested by the plant. The caterpillar of a plume moth, Trichopis parvulus, feeds on the glands and the secretion, and even consumes dead insects trapped by the plant. See page 1608.
