Relief I, Early Formative Olmec site of Chalcatongo, Morelos, Mexico. This bas-relief carving (2.75 millimeters in height) depicts an Olmec personage with elaborate headdress and ceremonial bar seated in a U-shaped niche or cave from which scroll-volutes of mist are issuing. The niche becomes an Underworld Earth-Monster mouth with stylized eye above and fing-motifs at the opening. This design, with three rain clouds above, raindrops, and maize symbols, implies an Olmec cosmological theme of the Underworld and agricultural fertility. See page 753.
