COVER

Computer-pseudocolor-enhanced video images of red blood cells following placement of a 2-micrometer laser lesion (dark spots in black-and-white photo). Different color enhancements bring out specific detail not detectable by conventional microscopy. Note small white spot (0.4 micrometer) in red enhancements; this is a hot spot in center of laser lesion not detectable in black-and-white photo. See page 505. [Michael W. Berns, Department of Developmental and Cell Biology, University of California, Irvine 92717]

American Association for the Advancement of Science was founded in 1848 and incorporated in 1874. Its objects are to further the work of scientists, to facilitate cooperation among them, to foster scientific freedom and responsibility, to prove the effectiveness of science in the promotion of human welfare, and to increase public understanding and appreciation of the importance and promise of the methods of science in human progress.
