The American Association for the Advancement of Science was founded in 1848 and incorporated in 1874. Its objects are to further the work of scientists, to facilitate cooperation among them, to foster scientific freedom and responsibility, to improve the effectiveness of science in the promotion of human welfare, and to increase public understanding and appreciation of the importance and promise of the methods of science in human progress.
An arctic ground squirrel, Spermophilus parryii, newly emerged from its hibernaculum in Alaska. During hibernation, arctic ground squirrels spontaneously and reversibly adopt core body temperatures as low as −2.9°C without freezing. See page 1593.
