The American Association for the Advancement of Science was founded in 1848 and incorporated in 1874. Its objectives are to further the work of scientists, to facilitate cooperation among them, to foster scientific freedom and responsibility, to improve the effectiveness of science in the promotion of human welfare, to advance education in science, and to increase public understanding and appreciation of the importance and promise of the methods of science in human progress.
A syllable in signed languages. Identical language structure in signed and spoken languages provides clues to the biological foundations of language. A syllable similar to the one represented here was observed in deaf infants’ manual babbling. Similarities between manual babbling in deaf infants and vocal babbling in hearing infants reveal that babbling is determined by an amodal, brain-based language capacity. See page 1493.
