SOME RESPONSIBILITIES OF SCIENCE WITH RELATION TO GOVERNMENT

By Dr. JOHN C. MERRIAM
Carnegie Institution of Washington

At this particular moment in history necessity for judgment on emergency questions has brought engineering, science and constructive work in sociology into important relation to government. Whatever views we may hold regarding the significance of scientific contributions in the present situation, this is a time in which questions touching the responsibilities of science to government can be discussed with hope that attention directed to the subject may aid ultimately in advancing understanding of this relation.

OBJECTIVES OF SCIENCE COMPARED WITH THOSE OF GOVERNMENT

Although science and the scientific method have become almost the controlling factors in certain great

1 Address at the General Session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Berkeley, California, June 20, 1934.