A point well developed in these essays is the evil of concentration of population, and, together with this, the ever-growing problem of proper water supply and of sewage disposal. The question of pure air is discussed; and also the purifying power of "the living earth." Cities now committed to the evils of expensive and wasteful water supply, with all the accompanying difficulties and snare of sewage and sewage disposal, Dr. Poore very properly leaves without his discussion; they have gone so far as to make a turning back well nigh impossible. Where the end will be he does not even conjecture. It is to the rural and suburban population that he appeals, and most ably, for a consideration of certain means by which, upon a thorough scientific basis, they can secure an efficient sanitation for their homes, a pure water supply and an increased land value, all at a minimum of cost. Nor is this rested upon theory alone; the practical working in all details has been developed in the author's suburban home, and the same means there used by him are open to all of us who have that blessing of a small piece of ground, and who are not condemned to live in a "flat."
