IN 1887 THE LIVING AGE enters upon its forty-fourth year. It has met with the constant commendation of the leading men and journals of the country, and with uninterrupted success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than Three and a Quarter Thousand double-column pages of reading-matter nearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted, The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature, and from the pens of The Foremost Living Writers.

The abest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of Literature, Science, Politics, and Art, find expression in the Periodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

“...The best of all the serial publications. It presents all that is novel, interesting, and profitable to be found in the current literature of the day. The reader is kept abreast with the best thought of the age, political, scientific, and literary, while there is just fiction enough interspersed between the more solid papers to be restful and entertaining. The LIVING AGE has no equal, and we cannot see where it could be improved.”—Christian at Work, New York.

“The aim of the conductors is to give the best and freshest thought of the time; and in this they are succeeding now, as for so many years, to the great satisfaction and profit of a multitude of at once exciting and satisfied readers.”—New York Evangelist.

“It contains nearly all the good literature of the time. There is nothing noteworthy in science, art, literature, biography, philosophy, or religion, that cannot be found in it. It is a library in itself.”—The Churchman, New York.

“To have THE LIVING AGE is to hold the keys of the best and most famous of the world's libraries, and to keep them at the same time within the means of each and everyone. It furnishes every volume with the care and discriminating and catholic taste of its conductors. Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. Art, science, and literature find fresh and eloquent expression in its pages, from the pens of the best writers of the day; and the reader is kept well abreast of the current thought of the age.”—Boston Daily Advertiser.

“Every volume attests anew the care and discrimination and catholic taste of its conductors. Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. Art, science, and literature find fresh and eloquent expression in its pages, from the pens of the best writers of the day; and the reader is kept well abreast of the current thought of the age.”—New York Tribune.

“It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valueless page.”—New York Tribune.

“...It is edited with great skill and care, and its weekly appearance gives it many advantages over its monthly rivals.”—Albany Argus.

“It is one of the publications that intelligent people regard as practically indispensable. From its pages one learns what the world is thinking about. It is an education in itself, as well as an entertainment.”—Harford Courant.

“The American reader who wishes to keep the run of English periodical literature can do so in no other way so thoroughly and cheaply as by taking THE LIVING AGE.”—Springfield Republican.

“...It furnishes every volume with the care and discriminating and catholic taste of its conductors. Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. Art, science, and literature find fresh and eloquent expression in its pages, from the pens of the best writers of the day; and the reader is kept well abreast of the current thought of the age.”—Chicago Evening Journal.

“The subscription price is slight in comparison with the mass of the best current literature which it brings with it in its weekly visits. In fact, a reader needs no more than this one publication to keep him well abreast of English periodical literature.”—Sunday-School Times, Philadelphia.

“...The best and most comprehensive periodicals.”—New-York World.

“It is a necessity for those who, with no great amount of time available for literary reading, wish to keep fully abreast of the literature of the day.”—The Interior, Chicago.

“It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature.”—Chicago Evening Journal.

“It enables its readers to keep fully abreast of the best thought and literature of civilization.”—Christian Advocate, Pittsburgh.

“It saves not only time, but money.”—Pacific Churchman, San Francisco.

“It is absolutely without a rival. Coming once a week, it gives, while yet fresh, the productions of the foremost writers of the day. Essay and review, biography, travel, science, fiction, poetry, the best of each and all is here placed within reach. To neglect such an opportunity of keeping pace with the thought of our day, and of laying by a rich store of the best literature, would, it seems to us, be a grave mistake.”—Montreal Gazette.

“It keeps well up its reputation for being the best periodical in the world.”—Morning Star, Wilmington, N.C.
