

GEORGE BROWN GOODE, one of the ablest and best men in America, died at Washington on September the sixth, at the age of forty-five years.

